

Church remains Silent in the Time of Demonic Cultural Onslaught

For more than 50 years this world has been bombarded with a cultural revolution, especially in the west, while to the east religious fundamentalism has constantly led to ongoing bloody conflict and the sowing of hatred.

While the Church has struggled, even though valiantly in effort, to make her voice known in the east due to life-threatening persecution, it is, however, sad in the west that the church has ignored and become silent regarding the moral defiling cultural revolution despite a lack of persecution.

God is on the move on the Asian continent, and despite the severe persecution the Church has managed to survive and thrive in the power and might of the Holy Spirit. Indeed, God is on the move in countries like India, Pakistan, China and Russia. But what about in the west? I fear that despite the lack of any real threat (for she is more than ever a diminishing threat in the spiritual war) the church has become far less "militant" when it comes to fighting spiritual battles. Instead of adding her voice to advocate purity and holiness, for the last 50 years or so the Church has steadily slipped deeper into a spiritual abyss of apostasy and lawlessness.

In the 1950s and 1960s there was a clear agenda on the table to push the west into a new direction of social anarchy, lawlessness, disorder and rebellion. It was a push for a social revolution to encourage the west to rise up against God's truth and order. It was a cry to indulge in the Self and to embrace the Church of Satan's motto of "Do What Thou Wilt Shall Be The Whole Of The Law." Sure, many times the devil himself was not exalted, instead Rock and Roll and the indulgence of the Self was promoted, but this was a smoke screen to lead the world away from a path of conservatism and down a path of self-destruction. And so, the revolution gathered slowly like a gathering storm until literally all hell rained down and still today pours down on a world where morality has been destroyed.

And so the social revolution picked up momentum and then gathered speed of demonic proportions with the help of entertainment industry - Hollywood and music - driving the agenda of the devil himself. It spawned the Flower Power Age, and the seeds were sown for the Age of Aquarius (New Age Movement), as spiritism and mysticism flowered. Cults and sects bloomed across the world, and the youth started to rebel against parents, the church and against society in general. Anyone who knows something of the music of the 1960s and 1970s will know it was an age of the introduction of paganism, the occult and witchcraft which flooded the mind of a new generation. With this upheaval in the music industry, the west was privy to the explosion of the sexual and drug explosion, encapsulated by the Woodstock music festival. By the 1970s the west was completely and utterly under assault, with allegiance to the devil openly declared, with sexual immorality and rebellion against God being driven on the mainstream platforms.

Of course, the biggest propaganda machine - Hollywood, which was very family orientated in the 1940s and 1950s - suddenly sprouted horns and by the 1980s the full-blown depravity of the sexual and drug revolution was on display for all to see and experience. The sexual immoral message fuelled the world's deprave obsession with carnal delights such as pornography. Adultery escalated and sexual "freedom" to experiment was advocated. All things "taboo" of the 1950s was by the beginning of the new millennium no longer taboo, and all things were now "permissible and even beneficial" for the world to witness. There are countless of programmes the last 30 years, on the big screen and on TV, that have driven this satanic agenda of sexual promiscuity and social rebellion while year after year viewers have been introduced and bombarded with the occult and witchcraft.

Fast forward to 2015, and all things unnatural in the eyes of God is now natural in the eyes of the world. And so, the social revolution that started decades ago has now reached great maturity, all as a result of the entertainment industry that keeps on driving the sexual and drug movement. Today, homosexuality is the norm (fruition of the sexual revolution), while God's natural order is being ignored as those who undergo a gender "change" is cheered on and lauded.

Indeed, the music onslaught of the 1960s and 1970s to introduce a rebellious way of life was absolutely massive and in your face. It was soon clear that there was no attempt to hide the purpose of this propaganda machine - introducing the world to the devil who only comes to kill, steal and to destroy. Of course, nothing has changed. The revolution to lead the youth astray has gained momentum at an alarming speed - it may no longer be in the metal rockers of the 60s and 70s, but it is now more subtle with the modern pop stars and the rappers leading the macabre parade of deception and indoctrination.

The Hollywood industry has of course constantly been pushing the envelope, and now movies like 50 Shades of Grey, Harry Potter and Twilight is the toast of town. We live in a world where nothing shocks and nothing offends, for this is the plan of the devil. Once the world is so saturated with all things vile and immoral, which is right now, he has the perfect platform for mass demonic oppression and possession.

And where has the Church in the west been regarding all of this? Sadly, not only has the Church been keeping quiet while the world burns in the flames of hell, but the Church has been swept away by the tidal wave of anarchy and rebellion. And the Church in her current state will be unable to do anything about mass oppressions and possessions – she after all denies the devil, and even worse, so many believers follow not the Lord but merely a religious code. Yes, the devil is gearing up for his great onslaught as seen in the Book of Revelations where sorcery, occult and magic is about as common as tax.

Over the last five decades, while a clear agenda has been pushed to lead the world and the youth down a dark path, the Church at the same time steadily forgot about the devil, about hell, about demons, and instead of acting like a true watchmen on the walls declaring God's Truth and sounding the trumpet of warning, the Church has rather chosen a different path. Instead of the Church standing in unity as the entertainment and the social revolution raged on, the Church became more divided, and instead of waging spiritual war against the onslaught, the Church decided to rather preach a "seeker-friendly" message of self-enlightenment and exaltation, tolerance, prosperity and self-enrichment.

Yes, while the world burns with more and more people becoming demonically enslaved and seduced daily, inside the church walls things aren't going so well either. Over the last 50 years there was revival here and there, but in 2015 the Church has become largely ineffective when it comes to waging war in the spiritual realm, because instead of being alert and sober, preaching against the defilement on the world, the church has been preaching humanism, and yes, even New Age teachings regarding the improvement of the Self (law of attractions and so on). Instead of the Church making her voice known while the voices of deception and cruelly whispered its incantations of spiritual corruption, the church has allowed herself to be swept up by the tidal wave of the social revolution.

How else to explain churches agreeing on same sex marriages, condoning pagan holiday festivals, condoning abortions, all the while deliberately and intentionally twisting the Word of God for own gain and benefit?

Sadly, while the call for sexual immorality has been promoted from all platforms, we see even within the church the dark tide has hit home. The spirit of lust has been rampant among believers and yes, so often among church leaders. Adultery and sexual promiscuity is not just the way of the world.

And of course, decade after decade, the Church has lost the fear of God, has systematically shunned the work of the Holy Spirit and her light has begun to dim dramatically. Any wonder why the world is ablaze. Is it not because the church itself is ablaze with carnal desires, all the while seeking after the delights of a world that is embraced by the devil himself?

In 2015, doctrines such as cessation, prosperity, self-glorification and hyper-grace remains rife in the churches, all the while idolatry, simony and iniquity takes the centre stage Sunday after Sunday.

Is the church today acting as watchmen? Not at all. She is too preoccupied with her own kingdoms and self-indulgences of vanity, pride and greed.

The satanic agenda is still pushed, more ferociously than ever before, and yes, the youth is under attack, so is the family structure and so is the institution of marriage. Yet, the church remains silent in this spiritual war, where more than ever the devil and his kingdom is denied as being real.

It is time again for the Church, not just in the west, but also in the east, to rise up against the tide of darkness and to let her light shine. This can only happen when we return to the heart of the Father, when we return to bow before the Lord and build His Kingdom.

The world is burning with hate and dissention, for this is the work of the devil. The answer to anarchy is the love, truth, holiness and hope that are to be found in Jesus. It is time for us to preach Jesus and to preach His Truth and His Way. That is only hope and answer – not conformity to the world.

While the world has been having many encounters with the devil since the 1960s, truly, it is time for the Church to again meet the Lord for then when she walks in His Glory to His glory so that the dark tide will turn into a tide of living waters. There is no other way. No clever sermon will help. For only the truth shall set you free and Jesus is the Truth. So let us preach Jesus so that we preach the Truth!

Amen
